CRS STUDIES IN THE PUBLIC DOMAIN

The Congressional Research Service is that department of the Library of Congress responsible exclusively for serving Members and committees of Congress. However, many of its studies and reports are published by authority of Congress and thereby become available for widespread distribution to the public. These may appear as committee prints, they may be entered in the published hearings of congressional committees, they may be inserted into the Congressional Record at the request of a Member, or on occasion they may be published by a private institution. Over the years the written products resulting from the great majority of the major projects undertaken by the Congressional Research Service have appeared in one of these forms.

This is a subject listing of primarily those Congressional Research Service studies and reports which have been printed in some form by the U.S. Government Printing Office during the first session of the 99th Congress (January 1985-December 1985). Most of the items can be found in those libraries throughout the United States which automatically receive the publications of the Government Printing Office, i.e., the depository libraries.

Many can be obtained from the U.S. Government Printing Office, Washington, D.C. 20401. The committee responsible for particular prints or hearings may also have copies on hand for distribution.

Since the Library of Congress maintains no stock of these materials, copies cannot be obtained from the Congressional Research Service.

In addition to this list, CRS also issues under specific authority several other publications. The Digest of Public General Bills and Resolutions, the CRS Review, and the Major Legislation of the Congress are available through subscription at the U.S. Government Printing Office. The annual national high school debate topic and the national college debate topic research manuals are printed as Senate documents and House documents respectively. The decennial Constitution of the United States of America: Analysis and Interpretation [Constitution Annotated] and the biennial cumulative supplements are printed as Senate documents and are available for sale by the Government Printing Office. All are available at government depository libraries.

This list was developed utilizing the computerized bibliographic data base created by the Library Services Division of the Congressional Research Service. Those contributing to its production included Edward Heiss, Kris Vajs, John White, and other members of the staff of Library Services Division.
